

2012 Cleo Curtis Award Recipient
Congratulations Dru Woodward!!!!
Way to go Girl!!!!

Dru was voted as the Cleo Curtis Award Winner at the Area Representatives meeting on Thursday, January 19. Sylvia Clayton, Member at Large, announced the Cleo Curtis Award Winner at the Convention Banquet on Saturday. Dru received the award with grace and confidence.

An Excerpt from the IADCCT March 2012 Newsletter:

The best part of this position on the Board is that you get to be in on the winner of the most prestigious award of our Organization – the Cleo Curtis Award. You have to be good at keeping secrets too, especially if you are sharing a room with the winner....!! It was the icing on the cake to present the award for 2012 to Dru Woodward – congratulations Dru – well earned !! Besides being a keen student of ceramics from her early teens, Dru has worked hard and held various Board positions from Secretary to President to help motivate us all into believing in our Association and to keep us all on track. She has devoted time and energy into education whether it be connected to the IADCCT or outside the Association, “its not possible” does not come into her vocabulary..... beside being a hard task master, you can bet your life there is always going to be fun in anything that Dru is connected with.....
